TERRIBLE things are happening in Ireland. They are told in the inside pages of this issue.

Here we point the responsibility and the moral. Responsibility lies with Mr. Heath and the Tory leaders. He is setting up a great national campaign to achieve his purpose. The Connolly Association will shortly be announcing details of a great national campaign to achieve this purpose.

SOLDIERS ARREST A MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT

WHILE protesting against internment as such and the whole policy of Toryism in Ireland, the release of Kevin McCorry is the key immediate issue. He is the full-time organiser of the Northern Ireland Civil Rights Association. The authorities do not pretend to have any "liberative" connections. He is being held because, if he were free, N.I.C.R.A. would be able to mount a mighty campaign against the whole policy of internment. Bombard Maudling with resolutions and telegrams. Your action can free McCorry!

The heartbreak price of Mr. Heath's policy.

THE PICTURES

ABOVE—A member of Parliament is released on bail after being arrested, it is alleged, in parliament. He may have sustained permanent injury to his health.

KEY ISSUE

WHILE protesting against internment as such and the whole policy of Toryism in Ireland, the release of Kevin McCorry is the key immediate issue. He is the full-time organiser of the Northern Ireland Civil Rights Association. The authorities do not pretend to have any "liberative" connections. He is being held because, if he were free, N.I.C.R.A. would be able to mount a mighty campaign against the whole policy of internment. Bombard Maudling with resolutions and telegrams. Your action can free McCorry!

DEPTFORD N.U.R. RESOLUTION

THAT this Branch of the N.U.R. expresses its sympathy to the Connolly Association and its endeavours to stop violence in a "sit-down" in Farringdon Gardens. An eye-witness, a Catholic living locally, reports that a Protestant who was attacked and permanent good humour, will know there is something radically wrong if this happens to him.

S.W.M. PROTEST TO HEATH

THE South Wales Area Executive Council of the National Union of Mineworkers at its meeting on August 19th, gave consideration to the very serious situation that has developed in Northern Ireland. It has already called for the withdrawal of the British troops to uphold the undemocratic Stormont regime.

We call upon you to recall Parliament immediately so that the elected representatives of the British people can discuss, debate and work out a political solution for this unfortunate situation.

CONGRATULATIONS

(Congratulations to Pat and Sheila Donavan, of South London G.A. on the birth last month of their daughter Kevin. Also to Mr. John Hume while trying to arrest violence in a "sit-down" in Farringdon Gardens. An eye-witness, a Catholic living locally, reports that a Protestant who was attacked and permanent good humour, will know there is something radically wrong if this happens to him.)
The Story of Liam Mellows

Review by Sean Redmond

The rise of the Sinn Féin and the formation of the Irish Republican Brotherhood in the 1880s set the stage for the 1912-1923 period of unrest in Ireland. Liam Mellows was deeply involved in these events, playing a significant role in the struggle for Irish independence.

The book documents Mellows' life and work, highlighting his role in the revolutionary movement. It is a comprehensive account that covers his political career, his involvement in the 1916 Easter Rising, and his later efforts to promote Irish fascism.

Mellows' experiences and perspectives are illuminated through a selection of his speeches, letters, and writings, providing a first-hand account of the events of the time.

This is an important contribution to the understanding of the Irish revolutionary period and the role played by Mellows in the struggle for Irish independence.

The conflict sharpeners

By PAT DEVINE

The conflict in Ireland has reached a new level of intensity. The Belfast agreement of 1970 has broken down, and the struggle for Irish independence is now at a crucial stage.

The British government has announced a new round of talks with the IRA, but the prospects for a peaceful solution remain uncertain. The situation in the north is tense, and there are fears of further violence.

In the south, the struggle for land reform and the rights of the Catholic minority continues. The situation is complex, and the path to peace is not clear.

U.S. closure and Scotland's future

By KEITH BUSH

The U.S. policy towards Ireland has long been a source of frustration for many Irish Americans. The current situation is no exception, with the U.S. government taking a hard line on the conflict in Ireland.

The closure of the U.S. embassy in Dublin has been a particular source of anger, with many Irish Americans feeling that the U.S. government is not doing enough to support the Irish people.

In Scotland, the situation is also tense, with a growing sense of frustration among the Scottish people. The Scottish government has been criticized for its handling of the situation, and there are calls for a more proactive approach.

The problems in Ireland are complex, and there is no easy solution. The key is to remain engaged and to work towards a peaceful resolution.
THE MONTH IN THE NEWS

The case for a Bill of Rights

CHARLES CUNNINGHAM

RELEASE KEVIN MCCORRY!

Mr. Lynch speaks—Dublin reactions

ANTHONY COULHAN (Dublin)

The sickly fruit of Heath's policy

CATHOLIC FAMILIES MOVE OUT

GREATER UNITY THAN EVER IN N.I.C.R.A.

DOROTHY DEIGHAN BUSY IN OFFICE

The Irish have lived in Great Britain for 300 years. They have had a far better time here than at home. They have enjoyed the rights of British subjects, and the opportunity that his great country offers to be independent of the government, to be free. They have enjoyed the freedom of the press, and the right to speak out against the government, to be heard. They have enjoyed the freedom of the courts, and the right to have a fair trial. They have enjoyed the freedom of the church, and the right to worship as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the schools, and the right to educate their children as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the shops, and the right to buy and sell as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the roads, and the right to travel as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the sea, and the right to fish as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the air, and the right to fly as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the land, and the right to farm as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the mind, and the right to think as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the body, and the right to enjoy as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the heart, and the right to love as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the spirit, and the right to live as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the soul, and the right to die as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the past, and the right to remember as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present, and the right to be here now. They have enjoyed the freedom of the future, and the right to dream as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present moment, and the right to live here now. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present breath, and the right to breathe as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present beat, and the right to beat as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present beat, and the right to beat as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present sound, and the right to hear as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present touch, and the right to feel as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present taste, and the right to taste as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present smell, and the right to smell as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present sight, and the right to see as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present thought, and the right to think as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present action, and the right to act as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present word, and the right to speak as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present action, and the right to act as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present word, and the right to speak as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present action, and the right to act as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present word, and the right to speak as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present action, and the right to act as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present word, and the right to speak as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present action, and the right to act as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present word, and the right to speak as they please. They have enjoyed the freedom of the present action, and the right to act as they please.
A SHAWL OF GALWAY GREY

[song text]

DONALL OG

Ballad of Douglas Bridge

[ballad text]

CARROL BAWN

TWAS in the town of Wexford they selected him to be in the town of Wexford they held the golden harp. And in that town he sang the songs that were to make his name. His voice was strong, his words were true, and his songs were so full of grace. And when they heard his voice, they knew he was a man of great leap.

[ballad text]

Undes Capicorn

[regular text]

Yeatsian Neutrality

[poetry text]

The memory of the dead

[poetry text]

The Girl from Donegal

[poetry text]

Wasted Wait

[poetry text]
Connolly Association Conference
Resolution on crisis in Ireland Draft

The Connolly Association returns to Manchester for its conference after 18 years. It was November, 1953 when it last visited the city.

Those were in great days when Danny Kilcom-...